Henry Doyle

Henry Doyle was born 10 August, 1858, in Hexham, Victoria. Doyle was a building contractor, and oversaw many of the early buildings erected in Subiaco in the 19th Century. In 1896 he was elected as Chairman of the Subiaco Board of Health, as well as President of the Subiaco Football Club and then president of the Subiaco Cricket Club. Doyle was the first Mayor of Subiaco. The first election of the Municipality of Subiaco took place on 29 May 1897, shortly after the Municipality was gazetted on 26 March 1897. The polling place for the election was the Wesley Church building. There were two candidates for the position of Mayor; Doyle, who at the time was Chairman of the Subiaco Board of Health, and Charles Hart, who was Chairman of the Roads Board. Doyle won the election, becoming the first Mayor of Subiaco, serving a one year term from 1897 to 1898. Doyle died 7 January 1932, aged 73. He was survived by his wife, two sons and three daughters. Doyle Court, one of the most prominent buildings in Subiaco located on the corner of Bagot and Rokeby roads, is named after him.

Alfred Axon

Alfred Axon was born in New South Wales, circa 1855/56. He moved to Western Australia and settled in Subiaco, where he became well-known as a land and estate agent, and was the local branch manager of the Intercolonial Investment Land and Building Company. Axon was one of Subiaco's first councillors, serving from 1896 to 1897. Axon died in 1905, aged 49. His body was found along the railway line in Leederville, and an inquest was made into his death. After the investigation a jury concluded that Axon's death was a case of suicide, caused by him being struck by a train whilst being intoxicated. Austin Bastow, who had known Axon for just short of a decade, was one of the last people to see Axon just hours prior to his death, having spent the best part of the day with him. Axon had recently suffered financial losses which were thought to have contributed to his apparent depressive state. He'd been arrested and fined for drunkenness earlier in the same week of his death. Axon was survived by his children and wife, Jane, who died 39 years later in 1944, aged 86. Axon Street is most likely to have been named after him.

1897 - 1898 - Subiaco Municipality

Walter Kensitt

One of Subiaco's first councillors, Walter John Kensitt was elected to the newly-formed Subiaco Roads Board in 1896. At the first election of the Subiaco Municipality in May 1897, Kensitt gained the most amount of votes for the position of councillor to the Central Ward, and upon his election became one of the first councillors of the Subiaco Municipal Council. He served as councillor to the Central Ward until 1902. Kensitt would later go on to return twice as a councillor of the Municipality of Subiaco, first as councillor to the North Ward from 1905 to 1906, and then as councillor to the East Ward from 1917 until his resignation in 1920.

James Murdoch

Murdoch was elected as councillor to the Subiaco Roads Board 1896. He was then elected as one of the first councillors of the Subiaco Municipality in 1897, serving as councillor to the North Ward until his resignation the following year in 1898. In a curious series of events, Murdoch was then elected Mayor of Subiaco, but only held the position for a very short period of time and never actually went on to properly serve as Mayor. This was due to a late nomination of Charles Hart. Murdoch was declared Mayor of Subiaco in August 1898 after the election caused by the resignation of Henry Doyle. However, due to the controversial manner in which he gained the position and the late nomination of Hart, he immediately resigned to allow another contest, which then saw Hart elected in September 1898 as the next Mayor of Subiaco.

Austin Bastow

Austin Bastow was born in Cleveland, Ohio, USA on 9 October 1867. In 1883 he immigrated to Tasmania with his family, and married Mary Anne Richards in 1890. Austin Bastow was an architect who moved to Perth and began practicing from 1896. He built his own home at 116 Heytesbury Road, Subiaco, in 1899, as well as a number of other notable buildings in Subiaco (including the iconic 'Stranrear' house at 285 Roberts Road, later the residence of Samuel McConnell Brown). A number of houses representative of Bastow's work as an architect still remain today. Bastow served as Councillor to the South Ward from 1898-1899, and was twice Mayor of Subiaco, first serving from 1899 to 1902, and again from 1905 to 1907. In 1909 Bastow moved to Melbourne, and died there 7 November 1942, aged 75. Austin Street in Shenton Park may have possibly been named after him.

Thomas Hetherington

Thomas William Hetherington was born circa 1860/61. In 1886 he and his wife relocated from England to New South Wales, where they lived for 10 years before moving to Western Australia and taking up residence in Subiaco in 1896. A tailor by trade, he was the owner of T. W. Hetherington & Son, which operated from 137 Rokeby Road and later 366 Hay Street. Hetherington was one of the first councillors of the Subiaco Municipality, serving as councillor to the South Ward for five years from 1897 to 1902. He was also on the committee for the Subiaco tram service. Hetherington died in 1940, aged 79.

John Roydhouse

John Charles Roydhouse was born 10 Dec 1868 in Wellington, New Zealand. He was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council in 1901 as councillor to the South Ward, serving for five years until his retirement in 1906. He later served as Mayor of Subiaco from 1926 to 1929. He died 23 July 1931, aged 62 in Subiaco, Western Australia, and is buried at Karrakatta Cemetery. Roydhouse Street in Subiaco is likely to have been named after him.

Frederick Whittle

Frederick Whittle was born circa 1854/55. He was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the Central Ward in 1899, serving for two years until 1901. Whittle also acted as legal advisor to the municipality, having worked as a barrister and solicitor prior to his election, and was widely admired and credited for his contributions to the development of the Subiaco Municipality. He died in May 1905, with his remains interred at East Perth Cemeteries in the presence of a large gathering of mourners. The pall bearers of his coffin included Austin Bastow and Charles Herbert Teague. Henry Daglish, who was Premier of Western Australia at the time, was also present at his funeral. Whittle was survived by his wife and two children.

Henry Daglish

Daglish was born in Ballarat, Victoria on 18 November 1866. He was educated in Geelong and attended the University of Melbourne, and in 1882 gained an engineering apprenticeship, but abandoned the trade shortly after in order to enter the public service. After working in the Victorian public service, he moved to Western Australia in 1896, settling in Subiaco. Daglish was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council in 1900 (after having unsuccessfully stood for election the previous year in 1899), serving as councillor to the South Ward for one year until 1901. He was twice Mayor of Subiaco, first serving from 1902 to 1904, and again from 1907 to 1908. Between his two terms as Mayor of Subiaco, Daglish was Premier of Western Australia, serving a one year term from 1904 to 1905. Daglish was re-elected as Mayor of Subiaco in 1907 following the resignation of Austin Bastow. Outside of politics, Daglish was president of the Subiaco Football Club, and was instrumental in securing finances for the construction of what would later become Subiaco Oval. Daglish died on 16 August 1920, aged 53, after having being diagnosed with cancer. The suburb of Daglish is named after him.

Samuel McConnell Brown

Born near Ballarat, Victoria in 1865, Samuel McConnell Brown came to Western Australia in 1896 during the Gold Rush. He opened a bakery in Coolgardie, and then in Subiaco in 1897, together with William Burns. Both Brown and Burns were soon to become councillors in the years to follow. Brown and Burns Bakery (388-392 Hay Street, then Broome Road) grew rapidly and became a successful and well-known business in the local area. Brown was first elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as a councillor for North Ward in 1898, serving for seven years until 1905. After one year he returned for a second term in 1906, serving until 1917 when he was then elected to the Legislative Assembly of Western Australia, taking the place of Bartholomew Stubbs who was killed in action that year. He married Grace Cameron MacTaggart (circa 1871 to 1936) in Perth in 1902 and they had three children. In August 1923, Brown's body was discovered in bushland near Herdsman Lake, his throat cut and a razor blade nearby. His death was ruled as suicide.

William Burns

Burns was born in Victoria, circa 1861/62. He worked for the Melbourne Tramways and Omnibus Co., before coming to Coolgardie, Western Australia to take up work on the goldfields. After eight months in Coolgardie he relocated to Subiaco, and together with fellow soon-to-be councillor Samuel McConnell Brown established the successful and well-known Brown and Burns Bakery in 1897. In 1900 he was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the North Ward, serving for two years until 1902. Burns died in May 1904 of appendicitis, survived by his wife, Alexandra Burns (married, 1886), and seven children. His funeral took place the following day at Karrakatta Cemetery and was attended by many notable figures of the Subiaco community, including Brown, Axon, Daglish and Rankin. After S. M. Brown retired from Brown and Burns Bakery in June 1920, Burns' widow, Alexandra assumed sole control of the business until 1930.

Stephen Upham

Stephen Thorne Upham was born in Geelong, Victoria in 1856. He was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the North Ward, serving for five years from 1900 to 1905. Upham had worked as a master printer, both in Perth and in the Meekatharra region. He later resided in Meekatharra where he printed and was editor of the Daily Telegraph and North Murchison and Pilbarra Gazette. Upham died in May 1932 at his residence in Meekatharra, aged 75. Upham Street in Subiaco is likely to have been named after him.

John Prowse

John Henry Prowse was born 16 June 1871 in Adelong, New South Wales. He was educated at Adelong Public School and King's College, Melbourne. Prowse worked as an insurance agent for United Insurance Co. for 25 years, eventually moving to Western Australia as State manager in 1903. The following year, Prowse was elected Mayor of Subiaco, serving for one year from 1904 to 1905. He later went on to become Mayor of Perth from 1913 to 1914, and in 1919 was elected to the Australian House of Representatives, serving as the member for Swan until 1922. Prowse then held the new seat of Forrest from 1922 until 1943. Prowse died 20 May 1944 in Donnybrook, Western Australia, aged 72.

Walter Richardson

Richardson was born 4 June 1871 in Saddleworth, South Australia. He came to Western Australia in 1897 and worked as a storekeeper, before being elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the Central Ward in 1906, serving for three years until 1909. He served a further two terms as councillor to the Central Ward from 1919 to 1920 and 1927 to 1935, and was also twice Mayor of Subiaco, first serving from 1920 to 1922, and again from 1936 to 1943. Richardson was also a Member of the Legislative Assembly for Subiaco from 12 March 1921 to 8 April 1933. Richardson died 25 February 1959, aged 87. Richardson Terrace is likely to have been named after him.

John Delamare

Delamare was born circa 1874/75. A builder by trade, Delamare contributed to the construction of a number of houses in the Subiaco area. He married Rose Ethel Herring in 1903, and they had three sons. Delamare was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council in 1905 as councillor to the South Ward, serving for 13 years until 1918. During his time as councillor, he was elected to the position of Treasurer of the Council in 1913. He died 21 October 1941, aged 66. His funeral took place at Karrakatta Cemetery.

Thomas 'Shirley' White

Thomas Harold 'Shirley' White was born in Prahran, Victoria, in 1867. He came to Coolgardie in 1893 during the Gold Rush, where he worked as a plumber. After nine years in Coolgardie, he travelled abroad in 1903 before returning to Western Australia in 1904, taking up residence in Subiaco. A prominent Subiaco resident, White was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the East Ward in 1905, serving for three years until 1908, at which time he was elected Mayor of Subiaco. He served as Mayor for two years until 1910, and later returned as councillor to the East Ward in 1915, serving for two years until 1917. In 1911 he was president of the Master Builders' and Contractors' Association, and in 1916 was president of the West Australian Trotting Association. He was also vice president of the Subiaco Football Club and the Mueller Park Bowling Club. After a period of ill health, White died at his home in October 1928, aged 61. A well-attended funeral was held at Karrakatta Cemetery, with a reported 500 people assembled at the grave. White Place, adjacent to his place of residence at 118 Subiaco Road, is named after him.

James Chesters

James Chesters was born in England, circa 1863/64. He came to Melbourne at an early age and took up work as a printer. In the 1890's Chesters bought a large tract of land in Subiaco through Austin Bastow, who was in business in Melbourne at the time. He moved to Western Australia in 1905, where he commenced development on the land he'd purchased. (The 15 acre property was situated between Heytesbury and Hamersley roads. Nowadays the area is built up with roads running through it). Chesters was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council in 1905, serving a one year term as councillor to the Central Ward until 1906. In 1907 he was councillor to the North Ward, serving for three years until 1910. He then became Mayor of Subiaco, serving for two years until 1912. Chesters was a member of the Subiaco Bowling Club, where in 1927 he won the State Championship title. Chesters died 26 June 1929 and is buried at Karrakatta Cemetery. Chester Street is likely to have been named after him.

Harry Gray

Harry Edward Gray was born in Victoria, circa 1863/64. He moved to Western Australia circa 1898 and worked as a builder for Whittaker Brothers, the large and well-known timber company established in Subiaco. As well as being Justice of the Peace, Gray served as councillor to the South Ward of the Subiaco Municipal Council for seven years from 1905 to 1912. He later also went on to be elected as councillor to the Municipality of Cottesloe. Gray died in 1925, aged 61. His funeral took place at Karrakatta Cemetery on 29 August 1925 and was largely attended, with mourners including fellow Subiaco councillors and the Mayor. Gray Street is likely to have been named after him.

Phil Mansfield

Phillip John 'Phil' Mansfield was born circa 1883/84. He was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council in 1914, serving for four years as councillor to the Central Ward until 1918. Mansfield also worked as secretary of the Subiaco Distress Fund committee, an initiative created to provide unemployment and distress relief during the First World War. Mansfield also had a keen interest in football, and had much involvement with the Subiaco Football Club, of which he was an appointed life member in recognition of his contributions to the club. He was delegate for Subiaco to the West Australian Football League, and in 1915 was elected the League's vice-president. He died 19 April 1949 in Geraldton, aged 65.

Sidney Snow

Sidney Simeon Snow was born circa 1864/65 in Essex, England. He migrated to Australia and resided in Victoria for 10 years before moving to Western Australia, where he worked as wharf manager for the shipping company McIlwraith, McEacharn & Co. He was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the Central Ward in 1910, serving for 12 years until 1922. A man of Christian faith, during his time as councillor Snow was also a preacher and Sunday School teacher. Snow died on 14 December 1924, aged 59, due to illness. He was survived by his wife, Esther Sophia Snow, and two children. His largely attended funeral took place on 16 December at Karrakatta Cemetery.

James Guy

James Theophilus Guy was elected as councillor to the Central Ward in 1912, serving for three years until 1915. He was then elected Mayor of Subiaco, serving for one year until 1916. Guy campaigned for the amendment of the WA Fire Brigades Act in 1915, which was successful in 1916. At a Subiaco Council meeting in September 1916, Guy announced he would not be re-nominating as a candidate for re-election to the mayoralty at the end of the municipal year. In 1917 Guy was a candidate in the Subiaco by-election for the Subiaco seat in the Legislative Assembly, which became vacant following the death Lieutenant Stubbs, who was killed in action. Guy, however, was unsuccessful, and the seat was won by Samuel McConnell Brown.

James Irvine

James Charles Irvine was born circa 1872/73. He was twice councillor to the Central Ward of the Subiaco Municipal Council, first serving for 14 years from 1909 until 1923, and again for a further two years from 1931 to 1933. Irvine died on 6 Dec 1933, during his second term of office, aged 60. His funeral took place the following day on 7 Dec 1933 at Karrakatta Cemetery. He was survived by his wife, Hariotte, and three daughters, Isobel, Hazel and Grace.

Stephen Richard Harricks Roberts was born 15 November 1874 in Ararat, Victoria. He came to Western Australia in 1895 and was the postmaster in the town of Menzies during the Gold Rush. In 1898 he married Catherine Cleugh Whyte. Roberts served as a councillor to the East Ward of the Subiaco Municipal Council from 1912 to 1919 and was chairman of the works committee.

Roberts fought in two wars; the South African War and the First World War, including active service in Gallipoli. He held the rank of Major from 1913 to 1916, and Lieutenant-Colonel from 1916 to 1920. Upon returning to Australia in April 1918 he was awarded the Distinguished Service Order medal. Roberts died 14 September 1943 and was buried at Karrakatta Cemetery. He was survived by his wife, two sons and a daughter. Mueller Road in Subiaco was changed to Roberts Road in 1917, likely after him.

Lionel Boas

Son of Rabbi Abraham Boas, Lionel Tobias Boas was born in South Australia, 1875, and moved to Western Australia in 1896. A decade later in 1906 he was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council, serving for ten years before being elected as Mayor of Subiaco, serving for three years from 1917 to 1920. He then returned to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the Central Ward, serving for a further 20 years until 1942. From 1903 to 1947 he served as Secretary to the Karrakatta Cemetery Board, and in 1905 he had helped form the Young Australia Football League, of which he was president until his death in 1949. A memorial gate commemorating Boas, designed by his brother, an architect, Harold Boas, was installed at Karrakatta Cemetery in 1954.

Joseph Totterdell

Joseph Totterdell was born in Cheshire, England on 4 August 1885 and immigrated to Australia in 1904. A bricklayer by trade, he along with his brothers established a family building firm, Totterdell Builders. He was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council in 1918, serving a one year term until 1919. He later went on to become Lord Mayor of Perth from 1945 to 1953, as well as a Member of the Legislative Assembly of Western Australia from 1950 to 1953. He was knighted in the 1953 New Years Honours.

Thomas Dudley

Thomas Anthony Dudley was born in Kingston, South Australia circa 1877. He attended school in Naracoorte, and upon finishing his education went into the fruit-growing and market gardening business, a trade in which he worked for the next 16 years. Dudley came to Western Australia in 1904, settling in Perth and opening a business in real estate. Soon after establishing himself as a real estate agent, he was joined by Mr. L. J. Dwyer. The pair went into a partnership together, forming the company Dudley and Dwyer Ltd, of which they were both managing directors. Dudley was also the managing director of Central City Investments Ltd. Dudley was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the South Ward in 1918, serving for three years until 1921.

Richard Newman

Richard Lawrence Newman was born circa 1878/79. Prior to being elected as councillor, Newman worked as a furniture dealer and was the proprietor of Subiaco Furniture Stores, located 183 Rokeby Road, and later 151 Rokeby Road. He was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the North Ward in 1916, filling a vacancy caused by the retirement of Martin G. O'Toole. He served for six years until 1922. Newman also went on to become long-standing president of the Subiaco Municipality Military Band, first elected in 1925. Newman died on 18 December 1951, aged 72, survived by his three children. His late wife, Florence (married 1902, Kalgoorlie), had passed away three years earlier in 1948, aged 67.

Edwin Watkin

Edwin James Watkin was born circa 1866/67. He was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council in 1919, serving for six years as councillor to the East Ward until 1925. Watkin was also well known as the conductor of the Subiaco Choral Society. Under his direction the choir performed at many public events throughout the 1920s, including the unveiling ceremony of the Subiaco Fallen Soldiers' Memorial clock tower, on the corner of Rokeby and Hamersley roads, in November 1923. Watkin died on 27 July 1944, aged 77.

Thomas Halbert

Thomas Grant Halbert was born circa 1873/74 in Mount Barker, South Australia. He came to Western Australia in 1896, entering work in the State Education Department. He opened the first school in the town of Meckering, where he worked as a teacher for three years before resigning to enter the storekeeping business. He then commenced work as an agricultural and farming agent. Whilst in Meckering he was also secretary and supervisor of the Meckering Road Board in 1914. He then moved to Perth and took up work in real estate, opening an office on Wellington Street in 1915. Grant was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the South Ward in 1921, serving for three years until 1924. He resided in Nedlands, and died in 1960, aged 86.

Henry Ranford

Henry Andrews Ranford was born in Perth, circa 1885/86. Upon completing his education in 1902, he entered the civil service, first taking up work with the Lands Department. He was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council in 1922, serving as councillor to the South Ward until 1924. Ranford was an avid sportsman, playing football, cricket and tennis. He was a close associate of the Subiaco Football Club, working for a time as secretary. As a cricketer he played for the Subiaco Cricket Club. Ranford died suddenly on 14 May 1934, aged just 48. His passing came as a shock to many, and his funeral, taking place on 15 May at Karrakatta Cemetery, was attended by a large group of mourners, including the Mayor of Subiaco, H. L. Downe. Lionel Boas was one of the pall bearers. At the time of his death Ranford was working as Assistant Controller of the Government Stores Department, and residing at 45 Bruce Street, Nedlands.

George Olney

George H. Olney was born in Ballarat, Victoria in 1878. He came to Western Australia as a young man and worked in the insurance business. Prior to entering municipal affairs, he had been the insurance department manager for Westralian Farmers, President of the Insurance Institute (1925 to 1927) and Chairman of the Fire and Accident Underwriters' Association (1921 to 1922 and 1923 to 1926). He was elected as councillor to the East Ward of the Subiaco Municipal Council in November 1926, serving for three years before becoming Mayor of Subiaco in November 1929, serving until 1931. Ever the prominent figure in public life who was heavily involved in other organizations and happenings throughout the local district, during his time as Mayor he was also Chairman of the Subiaco Unemployment Relief Committee, Chairman of the Metropolitan Local Government Association, a member of the Karrakatta Cemetery Board and the Fire Brigades Board, and was secretary and later president of the Kitchener Park Bowling Club, as well as President of the WA Bowling Association. He also had interests in the works of the Infant Health Association. Following his term of office as Mayor of Subiaco in 1931, Olney died after a short illness later that same year on 7 December 1931, aged 53, much to the widespread regret of the community. A reported 1000 people attended his funeral at Karrakatta Cemetery.

Richard Nash

Richard Harry Nash was born 2 July 1890 in Ascot Vale, Victoria. He arrived in Kalgoorlie with his parents in 1897, and was educated at Lake View State School. Upon finishing his schooling he first trained as a mechanic, before then finding work with the Kalgoorlie Miner as a proof-reader. Nash then went on to enter employment with the Kalgoorlie tramways, and was a founding member of the Kalgoorlie Tramways Employees' Union. He relocated to Perth in 1913 and would go on to become secretary of the Perth Tramways Employees' Union in 1922. Nash was first elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council in 1929, serving as councillor to the East Ward for three years until 1932. He then served as councillor to the North Ward for a further nine years from 1935 to 1944. Nash was secretary of the Metropolitan Council of the Australian Labour Party from 1939 until 1943, when he was then elected to the Australian Senate. He was also vice-president of the Western Australian branch of the Australian Labor Party from 1941 to 1943. Nash served as Labour Senator for eight years until his sudden death on 12 December 1951. He died of a heart attack at his home at 18 Bedford Avenue, Subiaco, aged 61. Nash was survived by his wife, three sons and a daughter. Two of his five sons died in active service during World War II. Nash Street was named after him.

*Mayor of Subiaco John Pender Bathgate (bottom right) at a Pensioners Meeting.
(Subiaco Museum Collection)*

John Bathgate

John Pender Bathgate was born circa 1869/70. He was elected Mayor of Subiaco in 1943, serving for six years until 1949. An accountant, Bathgate had been auditor for the Council, having recently resigned from his position in April 1943, before then being elected as Mayor only a matter of weeks later in May that same year, defeating retiring Mayor Walter Richardson. Public interest in the election was said to have been unprecedented, with a large crowd gathering outside Council Chambers awaiting the results. Whilst serving as auditor, Bathgate had been at the centre of controversy within the Council in the several months prior to his election as Mayor, having been consistently critical of the administration lead by Walter Richardson. Upon his election Bathgate stated that his 'return had been a vindication of his attitude over the past 18 months.' In the years prior to his election as Mayor of Subiaco, Bathgate had been president of the Subiaco Parents and Citizens' Association. He had also been auditor, and along with William S. Lonnie, vice-president, of the Subiaco branch of the Australian Labor Party. Bathgate died 5 August 1965, aged 95.

Rose Fuhrmann

Roseann Bridget 'Rose' Fuhrmann was born in Jarrahdale, Western Australia, circa 1880/81. An active and concerned member of the community, Fuhrmann was involved in local political and social matters, most notably with the Timber Workers' Union, helping to push for fair treatment and better conditions for workers in 1907. Settling in Subiaco soon after, she became a prominent figure and took a highly active role in local affairs, with particular commitment to child welfare. Fuhrmann was a member of the Subiaco A.L.P., chairman of the State Children's Boarding-out Committee, treasurer of the Women's Justices Association, delegate (and later senior vice-president) of the Labor Women's Central Executive, vice-president of the Perth Labor Women's Organization, Justice of the Peace, and was instrumental in establishing the Infant Welfare Centre in Subiaco in 1926. She would also become chairman of the Advisory Board to the King Edward Memorial Hospital for Women at its reorganization. Fuhrmann was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the North Ward in 1945, making history as Subiaco's first female councillor, serving for 16 years until 1961, as well as the first woman to be elected to a local council in Western Australia. The Rose Fuhrmann Centre and Kindergarten was built in her honour on Hamersley Road, Subiaco, in 1969. Fuhrmann died in 1976, aged 95.

Eileen Kerman

Eileen Kerman was born circa 1903/04. Well-known for her community and charity work, and having been president of the Shenton Park branch of the Australian Comforts Fund during World War II, Kerman was encouraged by ratepayers to nominate for councillor. She was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the South Ward in 1947, becoming the second female councillor in Subiaco's history after Rose Fuhrmann. Kerman was President of the Subiaco Maternal and Infant Health Association, President of the Catholic Women's League, Vice-President of the International Goodwill League, secretary of the Ministering Children's League Convalescent Home, and President of the Rosalie Community Centre. Kerman served as councillor for three years until her untimely death on 3 August 1950, aged 46. Her funeral took place on 05 August 1950 at Karrakatta Cemetery. The Play Centre and Free Children's Library, opened by J. H. Abrahams on 19 August 1950, was named after her.

Joseph Abrahams

Joseph Hyam Abrahams was born in Perth in 1899. On 22 October 1918, at the age of 19, he enlisted to the AIF, and was discharged just over two months later on 24 December 1918 when the war ended. Abrahams worked as a school teacher before being elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council in 1945, serving for four years until 1949 as councillor to the Central Ward. He was then elected Mayor of Subiaco. Abrahams is the longest serving Mayor of Subiaco, serving for 25 years from 1949 to 1974. He was also the last Mayor of the Municipality of Subiaco, and the first Mayor of the City of Subiaco, with the Municipality of Subiaco gazetted as a City on 8 February 1952, during his term of office. In 1975 he was made Freeman of the City of Subiaco. Abrahams died in 1980, aged 81. J. H. Abrahams Reserve in Crawley, formally within the City of Subiaco, was dedicated to him in 1980.

Dr. Gabriel Dadour

Gabriel Thomas 'Tom' Dadour was born 19 April 1925, in Waterloo, Sydney. He was educated at Cleveland Street School and Sydney Boys High School. Dadour served in the Royal Australian Navy from 1945 to 1946, before then attending Sydney University in 1947, studying medicine. He graduated in 1952 with a Bachelor of Medicine and Surgery, and the following year migrated to Western Australia, arriving on 8 January 1953. As a medical practitioner, Dadour worked at various hospitals and medical centres from 1953 to 1957, including Royal Perth Hospital, King Edward Memorial Hospital, and Shenton Park Annexe. On 4 January 1957, he commenced general medical practice at 104 Heytesbury Road, and later 24 Union Street, Subiaco. Dadour took special interest in sports medicine, and was the club doctor, as well as honourable patron and life member of the Subiaco Football Club from 1966. Dadour was elected to the City of Subiaco as councillor to the Central Ward in 1966, serving for 11 years until 1977. In February 1971, Dadour was elected to the Legislative Assembly as the Member for Subiaco, serving for 15 years until his retirement in February 1986. In 1986 he was also made a Freeman of City of Subiaco. Dadour continued medical practice throughout and after his parliamentary career. On 1 January 2001, Dadour was awarded the Centenary Medal for services to the community, and on 26 January 2001, was appointed Member of the Order of Australia, for his services and contributions to Subiaco, most notably as a general practitioner, to local government and to the Parliament of Western Australia. Dadour passed away 17 March 2011, aged 85. The Tom Dadour Community Centre, Subiaco, is named after him.

Evelyn Helena Parker

Evelyn Helena Parker was born 12 October 1907 in Hangkow, China, where her parents were missionaries. In 1921 her family migrated to Australia, first living in Sydney before relocating to Perth. In 1929 Parker completed her Teaching Certificate at Claremont Teacher's College, and for the next two decades worked as a teacher. In 1951, Parker became First Mistress at Subiaco Primary School, a position she held until her retirement in 1967. In 1953, whilst still teaching, Parker was elected to the Subiaco Municipal Council as councillor to the Central Ward, where she served for 21 years until 1974. Parker was then elected Mayor of Subiaco, becoming the first ever female Mayor of Subiaco, serving for three years from 1974 to 1977. During her time as Mayor, she was made Western Australia's Citizen of the Year in 1975, and in 1977 was awarded an OBE. In 1986 she was made a Freeman of the City of Subiaco, and in 1990, the Subiaco City Library, located on the corner of Rokeby Road and Bagot Road, was renamed the Evelyn H Parker Library in her honour. Parker died 28 September 1993, aged 85.

Richard Diggins

Richard Victor Diggins was born 19 May 1937. He was elected as councillor to the Central Ward of the City of Subiaco in 1974, serving for four years until 1978. He was then elected Mayor of Subiaco in 1978, serving for eleven years until 1989. Diggins was instrumental in preserving, promoting and celebrating much of the Subiaco's heritage, both as councillor and as Mayor. Whilst serving as councillor, Diggins, along with Miss. A. I. Chugg and Miss. E. R. Daglish, opened the Subiaco Museum in November 1975, and a wealth of items for the Museum's collection were donated by Diggins over the many years to follow. Richard Diggins Park, located on Park Street, is named in his honour and in recognition of his outstanding contributions to the City, with the commemorative plaque being laid by his successor Mayor Helen Passmore on 22 July 1989. Diggins resides in Subiaco with his wife, Pauline.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

July 27, 1984

Dear Mr. Mayor:

Thank you very much for the commemorative medallion and the handsome album of photographs of Subiaco which you sent to me. Many of the pictures are reminiscent of the California landscape and of the common heritage which Australia and America share.

It was a pleasure to meet the crew of AUSTRALIA II following their capture of the America's Cup last year. We naturally would have preferred to retain the Cup. Since it changed hands, though, all Americans are pleased that it resides, however temporarily, in Australia.

Nancy joins me in sending you and your colleagues our best wishes for the future.

Sincerely,

Ronald Reagan

His Worship
Mr. R. V. Diggins, J.P.

Helen Passmore

Helen Enid Passmore was born 17 July 1943. Passmore was elected as councillor to the Central Ward of the City of Subiaco in 1985, serving for four years until 1989. From 1986 to 1987, Passmore was Deputy Mayor of Subiaco, before then being elected Mayor of Subiaco in 1989, becoming the second female Mayor in Subiaco's history after Evelyn H. Parker. Passmore served as Mayor for five years from 1989 to 1994.

Tony Costa

Anthony Vincent 'Tony' Costa was born in Islington, England, in July 1941. He migrated to Australia as a child and resided at Bindoon Boys' Home. He then moved to Subiaco, where he worked at Parisienne Dry Cleaners for 18 years, before then finding work with the Western Australian Government Railways as a customer service agent. He remained within the railway industry for the next 32 years until his retirement. Concerned with social justice and fairness, Costa was heavily involved with the union, and successfully campaigned for migrant workers to gain literacy and numeracy skills in the workplace. In 1983, Costa was elected to the City of Subiaco as councillor to the Central Ward, serving for 11 years until 1994. He was then elected Mayor of Subiaco, serving for a further 11 years until retiring in 2005.

Mayor of Subiaco Heather Henderson, NAIDOC Week, 2013. (City of Subiaco)

Heather Henderson

Heather Henderson's father was a stonemason who relocated from Aberdeen, Scotland, to South Africa in 1937. Henderson was born in Benoni, Transvaal, and was educated at Durban Girls High School and Pietermaritzburg Teachers College. Henderson travelled extensively before settling in Subiaco in 1978, and in 1979 together with her husband bought a house on Keightley Road, Subiaco. Tony Costa, who would later become Mayor, was her neighbour, and it was at his suggestion that Henderson ran for council. Henderson was elected as councillor to the Central Ward of the City of Subiaco in 1990, serving for 13 years until her retirement in 2003. Henderson was then elected Mayor of Subiaco in 2005 after the retirement of Tony Costa, becoming the third female Mayor in the City's history. Henderson served as Mayor for 12 and a half years until 2017. Outside of municipal service, Henderson worked in Special Education for most of her teaching career. She was Deputy Principal at Kim Beazley School from 1986 to 2005, where she also taught children with disabilities until her retirement in 2010. In 2015 Heather was recognized for her contribution to Local Government and her outstanding service to the Western Australian Local Government Association with a Life Membership Award. In 2017 Henderson was made a Freeman of the City of Subiaco, and in 2018 she was recognized by the Western Australian Local Government Women's Association for her distinguished service and leadership as President and long serving member of WALGWA. In 2019 Henderson received a Medal of the Order of Australia.
