

Subi set to get spooky

Giant flowing monsters, haunted walking tours, and spooky laneways will transform Subiaco this Halloween as the inaugural 'Spookiaco' celebration arrives from Friday 30 October to Sunday 1 November.

Presented by See Subiaco, the three-day program will bring Halloween fun for all ages, with local businesses joining in through themed menus, best-dressed competitions, and pop-up activities.

At the centre of the festivities is MONSTERS CAN'T FLY, a colourful installation by artist Matthew Aberline with The Beautiful and Useful Studio. The playful monsters will land at Market Square Park from Friday 30 October until Sunday 8 November, glowing after dark.

Other weekend highlights include haunted walking tours with Oh Hey WA; uncovering ghostly tales of Subiaco's past, spooky laneways along Rokeby Road; transformed by artist Lynzie Bremner, and a 'Subi Fright Market' on Saturday 31 October, with Halloween-inspired eats and entertainment.

Mayor David McMullen said, "For a few days, we're giving Subiaco permission to be a little bit spooky."

"Come along, get dressed up, explore the monsters, markets, and laneways, and discover what our local businesses are getting up to for Halloween."

Minute with the MAYOR

A quick monthly update from Mayor David McMullen

It's a great time of year to head out on foot in our City.

The latest Oh Hey WA walking tours, supported by See Subiaco, will kick off later this month for new guided experiences.

Or head out on your own, take a different street or stop somewhere new along the way - like the prime example pictured.

Our Subi Streets Community Reference Group has been out walking too, helping the City shape how our streets will work for everyone into the future.

Last call for novel names

Four new waste and recycling trucks have arrived in the City, and we need your help to name one of them.

We're asking kids aged 5 to 12 to send us a name, plus a drawing of a waste superhero. The winner's creation will be printed on the side of a real waste truck!

Entries close Monday 12 October. Download an entry form and find out more at www.subiaco.wa.gov.au/name-our-waste-truck.

Jazzy Saturdays at Market Square

The Perth International Jazz Festival x Subi Night Market series is bringing soulful sounds to Subi on select Saturday evenings.

These pop-up performances on 10 October, 17 October, and 7 November will showcase some of Perth's finest jazz musicians, including Juliana Aerias, the Chris Foster Trio, and Josh Gray.

All performances are free and run from 6.30pm to 8.30pm as part of the Subi Night Market. Read more via www.subiaco.wa.gov.au/news.

Parking machine upgrades

The City is replacing its ageing parking machines with a modern fleet to improve the parking experience in Subiaco.

Parking fees will remain unchanged, EasyPark will remain a payment option at all car stations, and parking is still free on weekends and after 5pm on weekdays.

The upgrades have commenced, and will continue until mid to late December 2026. For more, visit www.subiaco.wa.gov.au/news.

Free FOGO liners

City residents can now collect free FOGO kitchen caddy liners and updated FOGO bin stickers from Lords Recreation Centre, the City's Customer Service at Level 2, 388 Hay Street, Subiaco, or the City's Depot at 19 Bishop Street, Jolimont.

Residents are reminded to keep FOGO simple: only food scraps, garden organics, and certified compostable caddy liners belong in your lime green-lidded bin.
