Live jazz to take over Subi this winter

Subiaco will come alive with the sounds of jazz this August as the Perth International Jazz Festival and See Subiaco present the inaugural Subiaco Winter Jazz Trail.

The trail will feature a free weekend of performances across Saturday 15 and Sunday 16 August, celebrating local music, vibrant businesses, and community connection.

The line-up will include 12 pop-up jazz performances in venues and public spaces throughout Subiaco, transforming cafes, galleries, churches, bars, and laneways into intimate live music experiences.

The weekend begins at the Subi Farmers Market, where the Nahler & Bates Duet will kick off the program before performances continue across venues including SAVA ART Gallery in Shenton Park, Subi Square, St Andrew's Church, Embassy by Devlin's and Quello Bar.

On Sunday, performances continue at Postal Walk, Subi Square, the Subiaco Hotel, Mossenson Galleries and FOUND. Subiaco, showcasing everything from Brazilian jazz and contemporary ensembles to energetic New Orleans-inspired brass bands.

City of Subiaco Mayor David McMullen said, "Along the Subiaco Winter Jazz Trail, expect to see familiar locations transformed into lively music venues. Pop in to one of our local galleries, bars, or even the Subi Farmers Market this August to enjoy some world-class jazz from a talented roster of musicians."

Minute with the MAYOR

A quick monthly update from Mayor David McMullen

Subi is a great place to get around, without always needing to take the car. And it's going to get better.

Last month Council endorsed our budget for the new financial year. Amongst the many things receiving funding will be: targeted streetscape upgrades, areas of road resurfacing, and improvements to cycling infrastructure; implementation of 40 km/hr zones on local residential roads; and a significant milestone in the ongoing Subi Streets project - with new Draft Movement and Place Design Guidelines scheduled to be released for public comment.

Stay tuned for updates on all of this.
