Give our waste truck a super name!

Four safer, quieter, and lower-emission waste trucks have arrived in the City of Subiaco – and local kids can help give one some personality!

Children aged 5 to 12 who live or attend school in the City are invited to name a truck and design a waste superhero. The winning name and artwork will appear on a working truck for up to 12 months, and the winner will receive a prize pack.

Mayor David McMullen said the new fleet represented an important investment in a safe and reliable essential service.

"The new fleet will help our Waste team deliver services more safely and efficiently, with less noise and lower emissions.

"These trucks will become familiar sights on our streets, so we want our youngest community members to help give them some personality."

Local primary schools have been invited to name the other three trucks.

Entries close Monday 12 October. Download an entry form and find out more at subiaco.wa.gov.au/name-our-waste-truck.

Jazz under the stars

Parking machine upgrade underway

The City is replacing ageing parking machines with a modern fleet, with upgrade works continuing late December.

A consolidated number of physical machines will remain available across the City, including six cash machines at five locations. Nine selected locations will become virtual payment only.

At virtual pay stations, motorists can use their smartphone to pay via a secure webpage without needing to download an app, create an account, or pay additional fees. Payment via the EasyPark app will also be available.

Look for signage and maps to help you during the transition. Learn more at subiaco.wa.gov.au/publicparking.

UnWined returns to Subiaco

Help shape the next chapter of See Subi on Sunday

Love local history and sharing stories? Subiaco Museum is seeking volunteers to help continue See Subi on Sunday into 2027 and beyond.

Following the program's 25th anniversary, we're looking for people to work alongside Marion Gathercole to develop future walks and, in time, help lead them.

The walks bring people together to explore places, swap stories, and connect with Subiaco's past. If that sounds like your kind of Sunday, we'd love to hear from you.

To express your interest, contact museum@subiaco.wa.gov.au.

Vale Keren McCullagh

The City remembers Keren McCullagh, a longstanding Subiaco Historical Society member and museum volunteer, whose contributions helped preserve local history and make it more accessible.

Keren contributed to local history awards, audited heritage trail plaques and walking tours, and helped shape the City's Disability Access and Inclusion Plan through her lived experience.

We extend our condolences to Keren's family, friends, and fellow volunteers, and acknowledge her lasting contribution to the City.
