

City proudly supports Mental Health Week

Mental Health Week is from 8 to 15 October, 2022. This year's theme is 'Where we live. How we live. What we've lived'. Mental Health Week provides the opportunity to promote effective prevention strategies and better understand how to stay mentally healthy.

Mayor David McMullen said: "The City is proud to support Mental Health Week each year. The last few years have shone a light on mental health and it is through initiatives like Mental Health Week that we can further our understanding of mental health barriers and learn how to stay mentally healthy together as a community."

The City of Subiaco has organised a series of interactive events designed to support mental, physical and emotional wellbeing. These events are open to the general public - be sure to register on the City's website, so you don't miss out!

Suburban Vibes returns to Subiaco

From Friday 7 to Sunday 16 October, a series of pop-up live music gigs will be happening throughout Subiaco, as Suburban Vibes returns for 2022.

Bringing the City alive with signature chilled and intimate live music experiences for both, free and ticketed events. Immerse yourself in music and stories from WA's must-see artists in iconic Subi spaces.

This year's program features home-grown talent from seasoned performers and the best up and comers, playing in gardens, laneways, bars and breweries across the ten days.

Suburban Vibes is brought to you in partnership with See Subiaco. To find out more, visit seesubiaco.com.au/vibes

Local government reforms

Significant reform to the local government sector has recently been announced but for the City of Subiaco, no changes will be needed.

Last year, the size of the Council was reduced and Elected Members resolved to continue with the method of popularly electing the Mayor - both of which are outlined in the new reforms.

City of Subiaco Mayor David McMullen said: "As to the reforms more generally, Council has previously emphasized the importance of cultural change, better understanding of governance at a practical level, and better real world understanding of statutory roles, over a reliance on legislative reform as the pathway to success in local government."

"Council has also been clear in its rejection of preferential voting, because of what we consider to be its susceptibility to influence and interference from political parties."

Finalist in national award

The City of Subiaco is excited to announce it has been selected as a finalist in the National Economic Development Awards 2022 for campaigns and events delivered through See Subiaco during the pandemic.

Mayor David McMullen said: "The City of Subiaco always works hard to support local business through increased visitation and vibrancy, and it's great that recent innovative and high impact campaigns have been recognised at a national level."

"These campaigns and events were designed and curated to minimise the impact of the pandemic and associated restrictions on businesses and visitors, while maximising impact."

"We're up against some stiff competition but no matter the outcome, I'm exceptionally proud of the work that the City undertook to support our business community and local economy during the pandemic."
