sunset@subi is back

The popular sunset@subi concert series is back for its 35th season to help locals and visitors unwind and make the most of the warm summer evenings.

This year's performers at the free outdoor concerts cover a diverse range of genres from Chicago-style blues to high energy Latin rhythms, and everything in between.

sunset@subi concert-goers are encouraged to bring along a picnic dinner or grab something from one of the delicious local eateries, before enjoying live music as the sun goes down. A dessert van will be at each concert for those with a sweet tooth.

There will be six concerts in total, running from 6pm to 8pm on various Sundays from 18 December 2022 to 5 February 2023, with an Auslan interpreter present at all shows.

Come along to the first free event, the Christmas concert, at Lake Jualbup on Sunday 18 December from 6pm, and get in the mood for the festive season.

241 Rokeby Road update

The City is investigating options, including a potential demolition and rebuild, for 241 Rokeby Road following a fire at the building earlier this year.

At the Council Meeting on 13 December, Elected Members gave the green light for the CEO to start investigating options that could incorporate contemporary community, Council and administrative staff facilities.

Comment on our DAIP

People living with disability make an important contribution to our community and the City understands the importance of developing a sense of inclusion for all.

A draft Disability Access and Inclusion Plan (DAIP) 2023-2028, which will guide the City's actions, activities and planning, is now available for community feedback.

You can comment on the DAIP at www.haveyoursay.subiaco.wa.gov.au/daip2023-2028 until 5pm on Tuesday 31 January 2023.

Library shines a light on banned books

Ever wondered what Dr Seuss and Lolita have in common? This December and January, Subiaco Library is highlighting a collection of books that have been banned or challenged by school boards, community members, or even politicians, in their Banned Books exhibition.

These books have been challenged for a variety of reasons, including controversial themes and disturbing depictions. The exhibition encourages readers to challenge their own views on censorship and read books that may be outside of their comfort zone.
