Stem by Stem blooms in Subi

Subi Blooms has launched its annual festival of flowers with a unique public artwork that fuses floristry with technology.

Stem by Stem, crafted by Melbourne design studio ENESS, is an interactive marvel – two towering inflatable characters adorned with vibrant bouquets by Perth's own Sir Botanical. The fantastical beings respond to movement, unleashing bursts of colour and enchanting sounds, captivating audiences of all ages.

Mayor David McMullen said he's excited to witness the success of Subi Blooms as it enters its sixth year.

"This popular event continues to flourish, and this year, it will be fantastic to see the large-scale Stem by Stem art piece added to the Subi Blooms map," he said.

Stem by Stem takes root on Seddon Street from 19 April to 19 May – two weeks either side of the Subi Blooms Mother's Day weekend events.

Subi Blooms is run by See Subiaco, an initiative by City of Subiaco.

Minute with the Mayor

A quick monthly update from Mayor David McMullen

A month of firsts.

We launched our local arts, culture and design magazine ARTFORM; resolved to create a new pocket park on Bagot Road (pictured: talking to ABC Radio about this – the interview is online); and approved construction of a Safe Active Street in Shenton Park.

We held our Harmony Week community event – which drew about 250 people to Theatre Gardens for an outdoor movie and traditional Chinese lion dance – and Supercar Sunday saw about 100 supercars on display at Market Square Park before taking a lap up Rokeby Road and beyond.

Anzac Day services

Join us in honouring the individuals who served our nation this ANZAC Day in the City of Subiaco.

The Subiaco-Shenton Park RSL Sub-Branch invites you to participate in a march on Thursday 25 April from 7.50am from the Subiaco Post Office. A second service will be held at the Shenton Park Community Centre at 6.50am on the same day. Find out more at www.subiaco.wa.gov.au/events.

127 years of the City of Subiaco

On 26 March 2024, Subiaco commemorated 127 years since attaining municipality status. Established in 1851 by Benedictine monks, Subiaco flourished, gaining municipal recognition in March 1897 with 388 listed houses. Prior to this, in 1881, Subiaco emerged as a bustling hub with houses, businesses and a vital railway station. Explore Subiaco's rich history and evolution by viewing our commemorative video at www.subiaco.wa.gov.au/news.

Get your team into social sports at Lords

Registrations for the Autumn/Winter social sports season at Lords Recreation Centre close Monday 29 April. Did you know that team captains are eligible to receive a free Lords membership for the duration of the season? For more information visit www.lords.com.au/sports-competition.

Kerbside textile collection is back

Don't miss out on the chance to make a difference in Subiaco. From 15 April, Good Sammy's household textile collections will begin. Simply fill the yellow bag you received in your letterbox with pre-loved clothing, accessories and shoes, then place it near your letterbox for collection. Even better, you can use up to three additional bags! Last year, over 1150kg of items were generously donated, contributing to a significant reduction in carbon emissions. For more information visit www.subiaco.wa.gov.au/news.

City unveils Heather's Walk

The City has officially named a local leafy walkway after former Mayor Heather Henderson. In recognition of Heather's enduring legacy, an Elected Members' Motion was unanimously carried last year to create 'Heather's Walk,' a serene pathway nestled amidst the vibrant surroundings of Subi Common. The walkway, adorned with London Plane trees, serves as a poignant tribute to her cherished presence within the community. For more, visit www.subiaco.wa.gov.au/news.
