

Local volunteer finalist in WA Heritage Awards

City of Subiaco volunteer, Marion Gathercole, has been named as a finalist in the 2021 WA Heritage Awards for her significant contribution to the promotion and understanding of cultural heritage in the community.

Marion has been running the popular See Subi on Sunday walking tours for more than 20 years, helping to share Subiaco's stories, history, heritage, character and beauty.

The walks provide an opportunity for people to learn, connect, share and discover the important heritage that contributes so much to the fabric of the City, and to recognise and value our links with the past.

Subiaco Mayor David McMullen said we were very lucky to have Marion as part of our community and wished her the best of luck at the ceremony.

The WA Heritage Award winners will be announced at a ceremony on November 19.

Subiaco Oval community use signed off

The signing of the Subiaco Oval Shared User Agreement has solidified the hours of community, school and sporting use and finalised responsibilities for maintenance and costs.

The agreement outlines the days and hours of use, management, and maintenance of the oval with future use now shared by the community, Bob Hawke College, and the WAFC.

Mayor David McMullen said: "I am pleased Council have endorsed the agreement and stakeholders have come together to achieve a positive community outcome. This is an important step in reinstating community access to this unique community space, which in recent memory had largely been inaccessible to all but professional sportspersons."

Subiaco Library turns 50

Subiaco Library is turning 50 and the City is celebrating with a 70s-themed night of nostalgia.

Come along to the party at 6pm on Monday 22 November to take a trip down memory lane and see how the library has developed and changed over the decades since it first opened its doors in 1971.

Mingle with past managers, past mayors, and past staff and share your favourite memory of your time at Subiaco Library.

A corner store celebrated

Hensman Road is a treasured and valued character streetscape, typical of a Subiaco street. However this street boasts a pot of gold. Sitting on the corner of Nicholson Road, an early inter-war era corner store is being lovingly restored and extended. Excitingly, the shop component will be re-activated, providing public access as per its original use.

Built circa 1922, this corner store helps to illustrate a suburban way of life that is no longer practiced in Subiaco. A century ago corner stores such as this one were sprinkled throughout Subiaco addressing the need for easy day-to-day access to perishables and general groceries. All at a time before supermarkets, household refrigerators, and the widespread use of motor cars.

Shelley is the owner of this historically significant place and understands the importance of its conservation and revitalisation.

"I was very drawn to the building from the first time I saw it. It was in dire need of repair but I could see its potential and knew I could play a part in bringing it back to life. The fact that it is nestled in a residential context has been a wonderful bonus and community support for the project from the outset has been incredible," Shelley said.

City to update active open space report

The City will seek an update of a report that details future requirements for active open space after a recent decision of Council.

The Cardno Report was done in 2016, outlining future requirements for sport space in the City; it recommended Subiaco Oval be retained for community sporting use to help address an under supply of active open space.

Council also recently decided to seek legal advice regarding a 2018 Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between the City and the State Government relating to Subiaco Oval to investigate whether particular obligations have been met and, if they have not been, what options are available to the City.

Subiaco Mayor David McMullen said an updated active open space report would help strengthen the City's position when advocating for community priorities in this area.
